Your Generous Contribution at Work

When you contribute to The Roentgen Fund®, you are supporting the scholarly and scientific pursuits of young investigators and professionals who are charting the course for radiology’s future. From medical professionalism to clinician education and scientific research, your generosity has an enduring impact on the specialty.

CONDUCTING ESSENTIAL RADIOLOGY RESEARCH

The ARRS Scholarship offers the opportunity to study a specific field in radiology that enables the scholar to pursue scientific research with the possibility of changing the way radiology is practiced.

“Since my ARRS Scholarship, I have expanded my local and national network of collaborators and secured consistent funding through the NIH and industry.”

—Elizabeth McDonald, MD, PhD
University of Pennsylvania

“The ARRS Scholarship allowed me to focus on early-phase clinical trials evaluating functional imaging, which is an imaging technique that displays the anatomy and function of the breast, as a precision tool combined with a newly developed Garcia for PET/CT scans. By looking at these images, we hope to measure or predict a biological outcome for patients who may be eligible for surgery which we have called rolls that are actually growing. Early results from an ongoing clinical trial indicate that we are able to measure cancer cell growth with a functional imaging study in a patient that is diagnosed with cancer. This may be a key in helping radiologists identify the best treatment for patients. We can use the right option in the right treatment for the best response.”

—Achala Vagal, MD, MS
University of Cincinnati Medical Center
